

The mission of Opendesk is about relocating manufacturing, which changes the way we think about how goods are made. Commercialization is integral to their mission, and they've begun to focus on success metrics that track how many makers and designers are engaged through Opendesk in revenue-making work.

As a global platform for local making, Opendesk's business model has been built on honesty, transparency, and inclusivity. As Nick and Joni describe it, they put ideas out there that get traction and then have faith in people.
